THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 6, 1891.

TRADE WITH BRAZIL. THE PORTS OF THE NEW REPUBLIC OPEN

and applicable equally to all parts of the nation. The measure under consideration, however, did not, in many of its details, receive the sanction of his judgment. It appeared to him to be cumbrous, complicated, obscure, in many of its provisions, and difficult of application. It subordinated the judiciary to political control, and opened the treasury to an indefinite expenditure, without requisite supervision, and in violation—in his judgment—of the spirit, if not so the letter, of the provision of the constitution that declared that no money should be drawn out of the treasury except in consequence of appropriations made by law.

MHY HE PAIRED.

In order to guard against the enactment of TO PRODUCTS OF THE UNITED STATES retary Blaine's Great Reciprocity Tri-umph, Which Makes Little Mr. Harrison Very Mad.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—[Special.]—The president late this evening issued his first roclamation under the reciprocity clause of the tariff act. By it a reciprocal agreement is completed

VOL. XXII.

This agreement opens the ports of the Bra-zilian republic to the trade of the products of our farms and factories, in return for which coffee, tea, sugar, molasses and hides will con-tinue on the free list. The increase in our exports to Brazil under the agreement is estimated at about $20,000,000. The negotiations have been practically closed for several weeks, and the delay in giving it out is attribut arequest made by President Fonseca, of Brazil.

Notwithstanding this announcement, however, it is authoritatively stated that President Harrison is directly responsible for the delay. He has been excessively jealous of Secretary Blaine, and knew that in the nature of things the announcement of the completion of a re-ciprocal agreement favorable to the United States would revive the reciprocity agitation and again stimulate Mr. Blaine's presidential boom. Coming just after the president had sustained such a signal defeat in the advance ment of his force bill policy, he must, of course suffer by contrast with his premier.

The Post announces that the negotiations which have been in progress between the United States and Brazil resulted last Saturday in signing an agreement, under the reci-procity clause of the new tariff law, by Secre-ary Blaine and Senhor Mendonca, Brazilian minister. The agreement has been approved by President Harrison. The agreement will go into effect the first day of January next. It is understood similar agreements with iba and Venezuela are being negotiated.

Sir Julian read it all carefully, and after some conversation, he, at the request of the agent, reduced to writing what he had said, as follows:

BRITISH LEGATION, WASHINGTON, February 5.—
Dear Mr. McKee: I absolutely deny having used any of the language attributed to me in the alleged interview telegraphed to The London Times, and republished in The World of today.

A man accosted me in a public car and asked me whether I had heard of the decision of the supreme court, given that day on the "Sayward" case. On my replying in the negative he informed me that leave had just been given to file the petition. We exchanged a few commonplace remarks about the agitatioa which the case had adopted in the United States of Brazil, whether tional, state or municipal, of articles or mer-andise named in the following schedule, pro-ded that the same be the product or manufac-re of the United States of America: Lard and e substitutes therefor; bacon, hams, butter and lesse, canned and preserved meats, fish, fruits and veretables; manufactures of cotton, includcanned and preserved mean, included the stables; manufactures of iron and colothing; manufactures of iron and the least idea that I was being "interviewed."

The above, however, is all that passed. I am, steel, single or mixed, not included in the foregoing free schedule; leather and manufactures thereof, except boots and shoes; lumber, timber and manufactures of wood, including cooperage, furniture of all kinds, wagons, carts and carriages; manufactures of rubber. dear Mr. McKee, yours very truly,

David R. McKee, Washington Agent of the Associated Press.

After writing this letter, the minister summoned his secretary, had a copy of the letter made, and directed that it be addressed to Lord Salisbury and cabled at once in cypher to riages; manufactures of rubber.

And that the government of Brazil has further provided that the laws and regulations adopted to protect its revenue and prevent fraud in declarations and proof that the article named in the foregoing schedules was the product or manufacture of the United States of America, shall place no undue restrictions on an importer, nor impose any additional charges or fees therefor on the articles imported.

It was Mr. Gorman, himself, who proposed a change. He feared the cry might be raised that a free coinage amendment to the pension bill was an underhanded method to prevent the payment of pensions, and upon his advice the western free coinage element decided to await the legislative appropriation bill, upon which to attach a free coinage bill in the shape of a rider. BLAND WAS ON HAND. However, an opportunity presented itself in the house to the free coinage men today, and they seized vigorously. The sundry civil appropriation was under consideration. In the bill was a paragraph making an appropriation for a recoinage of worn gold and silver coin.

When the was read, "Silver Dollar" Bland, of Misson, jumped to his feet, and offered in amendment providing for the free and unlimited coinage of standard silver dollars.

During the afternoon the Hoar-Aldrich gang met, and discussed Ingalls's statement that he would favor a non-sectional and non-partisan election bill. Hoar wanted to prolimited coinage of standard silver dollars. The house was in committee of the whole at the time. It was also within a few minutes of the regular hour for adjournment. A point of

In any case the officer seems to have lost his head and to have ordered the gendarmes to charge the crowd. They did so at a gallop, firing pistols and carbines right and left. The result was that several persons were more or less dangerously wounded and a number of bullets from the gendarmes' weapons flattened around the balcony and window of the hotel from which Salmeron was speaking. A BREAK IN THE RANKS. Alliancemen Voting With the Boyd Men in the Nebraska Legislature. LINCOLN, Neb., February 5 .- [Special.]-The action taken yesterday on the governor-ship question foreshadows a failure of the contest against Governor Boyd, and in the epinion of the best posted politicians means the dissolution of the independent or alliance forces. At the opening of the session it was voted that the legislature could in no wise recognize the right of Boyd to hold the governor's chair, although the constitution made it necessary for the speaker of the house to open the returns and declare the man having the highest number of votes duly elected.

Yesterday it was voted that the message of whole afternoon was spent in the discussion of a motion to invite Governor Boyd to deliver his message on Friday. The scene in the house during the debate was extremely exciting. The alliance members hinted that there was treachery in the air, and when the motion was finally dealered excited by a majority of pinal inally declared carried by a majority of nine there was much confusion and intense feeling. It is said that three or four of the senator have already broken away from the alliance party, and the vote taken yesterday indicates that the number of seceders in the house will reach eight. It is possible that these men will go back into the alliance caucus and be reored to full membership again, but it is con

SHELBY, Ala., February 5 .- [Special.]-Tuesday evening, at about 4 o'clock, the stage bridge across the Coosa river near here, gave way, with five cars loaded with rock for the piers of the new iron bridge. Three men were rowned and one killed by falling timbers. The drift from the high waters had lodged against the bridge for nearly one-quarter of a nile up the river. The Louisville and Nash ville Railroad Company, who built the road, had about 150 men at work pushing the drift through the staging. The road had just been completed, and trains were running through from Calera to Attalla. Chief Enginee Taylor says the calamity will set them back about six weeks on the new bridge. The re-cent rains have caused considerable damage to roperty throughout this section.

The Sun's Cotton Review. NEW YORK, February 5 .- Futures were slightly dearer throughout the day, closing dull, but steady. The market today was nearly a repetition of that of yesterday, an early advance, sustained with more or less vigor to the close, but with deal-ings on a very moderate scale. The bulls atings on a very moderate scale. The bulls at-tempted to make use of the comparatively full receipts at Memphis, but with little effect. New England spinners are reported to be in no hurry to secure stocks of cotton, believing that there will be enough to go around. In this view they are quite willing that the bulls should carry the load and take their chances in the matter of price. The early advance was due to a stronger report from Liverpool, but there was no supporting inci-dent after the second call. Spot cotton was dull.

For the Relief of Poor Confederates. MONTGOMERY, Ala., February 5.-[Special.]-The Alabama house today passed a bill for the relief of needy confederate veterans, and widows of soldiers killed in the war. The bill imposes a tax of half a mill on all property of the state to raise a revenue to carry out its provisions. This tax will raise a sum of $125,000, which, it is believed, is the largest sum ever raised in any southern state for the relief of needy confederate soldiers.

FROM THE TRESTLE

HANGS THE BODY OF A NEGRO MURDERER.

THE ASSASSIN OF MARSHAL WARD. Arrest Him, but They Do, and He Is Lynched.

GREENVILLE, Miss., February 5.—[Special.] On the night of January 28th, N. W. Ward, marshal of the town of Leland, in this county, was assassinated by some unknown negro. So outraged were the citizens of Leland that a public meeting was called, and a reward of 3500 was offered for the apprehension of the assassin. This reward was supplemented by the governor with $200.

THE CLUE TO THE MURDERER. The affair remained a mystery for some days, until on last Monday, worthy and intelligent negroes living in the neighborhood, reported at Leland that a negro by the name of Green Jackson, was on the plantation on which they were tenants, who had said that he was the man who killed Ward, and defied any set of white men to come and take him. Two or three citizens, including the newly appointed marshal, Mr. French, immediately put out for him, and without any trouble he was arrested and brought to Greenville on Monday. It was generally supposed that they had arrested the wrong man. On yesterday morning he was taken to Leland to be tried and examined before the magistrate.

CONFESSES THE CRIME. He confessed to the killing. He was re manded to jail to await the action of the grand jury, and was turned over to the marshal of Leland to bring him to this city, and turn him over to the sheriff of the county. The train, which left there at 10 o'clock last night, bearing the marshal and his prisoner, had only proceeded about a mile, when it was flagged and fifty armed men boarded the train and took the prisoner from the custody of the officer, and took him from the train, which was allowed to pass on.

DANGLING FROM THE TRESTLE. The indignant and outraged mob hung the ssassin to the bridge crossing Dunn creek, where his body was found dangling to the trestle of the bridge today, riddled with bullets. At 3 o'clock this evening, the ghastly spectacle was still seen there, as a warning to all those who will fellow in his footsteps. The railroad officials, it is reported, will cut it

The murdered man was very popular and eaves a wife and three children. It is reported that the assassin said in his confession that he was hired to do the deed, but no credence is placed in that portion of his confession, as Ward had no known enemies, and no cause for any. Fuller Company contracentire work, with certain parts reserved done by the East Atlanta Land Company should so elect. The next bid was from Messrs. Miles & Bradt, which ran about $700,000. The East Atlanta Land Company is to be congratulated on securing a very favorable contract, which will secure the building of the structure in the short space of fourteen months' time, and at a total cost of something less than $700,000. The George A. Fuller Co., of which Mr. Fuller is the head, is probably the most reputable contracting firm of fire-proof buildings in America, and have at this time under contract more than eight millions of dollars worth of buildings in Chicago alone. Among them are a Woman's Christian Temperance Union temp to cost $2,500,000; the Monadnoe and Kearsarge buildings, for the Brooks estate, to cost $2,500,000, and the new commercial Fair building, to cost $3,000,000. This last is to be sixteen stories high. Among those erected are the new Rand& MeNaliy building, the Caxton building and much of the work of the famous "Rookery building," all strictly fireproof.

President Robinson, of the Seaboard and MACON, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—In addition to what has already been published in The Constitution about the Covington and Macon railroad and bondholders' meeting in Baltimore last Saturday, the following can be published:

be published:

The Central, it will be remembered, made a bid of 4 per cent interest. Well, President Robinson, of the Seaboard and Roanoke system, offered 4\(\frac{1}{2}\) per cent, but Branch & Scott, the well-known bankers of Richmond, Va., in company with a Mr. Stuart, of England, who is supposed to represent the English bondholders, came before the meeting and said if a little longer time was granted they would make a better off than 4\(\frac{1}{2}\) per cent. Accordingly the meeting adjourned until the 14th instant, whereupon Robinson said if the matter was not decided right then, Saturday, January 31st, he would withdraw his offer, which he did. The matter, therefore, stands with the Central's would withdraw his offer, which he did. The matter, therefore, stands with the Central's offer of 4 per cent and Branch & Scott's promise of a better bid than 4 per cent. It is surmised that Branch & Scott's offer will be made in the interest of English bondholders, holding $435,000 of bonds, who think they can make the road and pay better than 4 per cent. President Sparks, of the Georgia Southern, is in with the Robinson bid at 4 2.

THE TRIAL OF JONES.

The Prisoner Makes a Statement of Over Two Hours. Two Hours.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]
The evidence in the trial of Charles T. Jones, for the murder of the negro Jim Young, was concluded here today. Jones made a statement of two hours in length this afterneon, and it is generally thought that this statement will chem him, us it was evident from first to last that he was telling the whole truth. He reviewed the entire case, telling everything for or against him. The argument will begin tomorrow, and close about Friday. The courthouse is packed with negroes and white people, and the excitement increases. Public opinion favors Jones's release.

Death of a British Vice Consul. BRUNSWICK, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—James W. Drury, British vice consul at this port, died suddenly in this city today with hemorrhage of the lungs. THE HORRIBLE CRIME OF A NEGRO IN DOUGHERTY COUNTY.

He Murders His Own Child, Puts the Body in a Sack and Throws It in a Pond—How the Crime Was Discovered.

ALBANY, Ga., February 5 .- [Special.]-One of the most brutal, unnatural murders that has ever been recorded in the criminal history of this county has been discovered, and the police are making a vigorous search for the murderer. The Albany News and Advertiser gives the following account of the terrible affair In the latter part of last December, a negro man, or rather a demon named Turner Robinson, living on the Slappy place, in Baker county, after having considerable trouble with his mother-in-law over the negacing of a liv his mother-in-law over the possession of a lit-tle girl, succeeded in obtaining control of the child through a decision of the court of or-

Robinson, it appears, had not been blind to the child's growth, and as soon as he saw that she had grown large enough to be of service, he took the child home and a short time afterhe took the child home and a short time afterwards, or rather in the latter part of December last, the child's disappearance was noticed by Robinson's neighbors, and in answer to their inquiries concerning her he said that she had run away and returned to her grandmother, who lived on the plantation of Colonel J. S. Boyt, deceased.

This explanation of the child's disappearance was recreated as satisfactory by Robinson

On the Slappy place, near Robinson's home, is a small pond around which some children were playing last Sunday, when they came upon a crocus sack, which their curiosity prompted them to examine, and the examin prompted them to examine, and the examina-tion revealed the skull and other parts of the remains of a dead child, in an ad-vanced stage of decomposition. The sack ap-peared to have been imperfectly buried, and the hogs had rooted it up and devoured part of the body. With the remains were found bits of clothing, which was recognized as having belonged to Robinson's child, which revealed the story of her disappearance, and the probable fact connected therewith, to the effect that Robinson had beaten her to death and then, to conceal his inhuman crime, had placed the body in a sack and buried it in the

A BLOODY FIGHT.

The Birds and Lees Come Together in Bulloch County.

SAVANNAH, Ga., February 5 .- [Special.]-The fight at Bloy's postoffice, in Bulloch county, between the Bird and Lee boys, a few days ago, may have fatal results. W. W. Bird passed the Lee place while the Lee boys were ginning cotton. They were not on good terms, and when H. C. Lee called on him to "hold up" a moment, Bird he was going to shoot. Bird did not stop, but called to his son, Scott, who was some distance off, to bring his gun. The Lees then attacked him, and Bird stabbed H. C. Lee twice in the back. Russ Lee then started to run, when Scott Bird shot him down. The wounded are in a critical condition. It is thought Russ will die. The Lees had the Birds arrested. There was a preliminary trial, and the Birds were bound over to the superior court. Sheriff Williams took them to Statesboro jail. If the Lees get better, it is thought the Birds will give bord. the Birds will give bond

THE LULA ASSASSINATION.

There Was No Suspicion of Suicide in It, But Premeditated Murder.

LULA, Ga., February 5 .- [Special.] - As to r. Larkin Smith, the idea of suicide was not for a moment entertained by anyone. Mr. Smith was shot by some cowardly assassin from the sidewalk. He was sitting on one side of the fireplace, with his leg thrown over the arm of his rocking chair slowly rocking. One half of the window was open, and there was a bright light in the room. As he rocked back the gun was fired, and he fell from his chair shot in both thighs and six shot in the calf of his leg. He had not be out talking to any men as reported, for his wife was sick in bed, and he had just left her room about five minutes. It was simply a premeditated attempt to murder a man in his home. Professor Cochran was sitting near him. and the glass from the window was him, and the glass from the window was thrown all over his head and face. A large ball passed over Mr. Smith's head, and three that would have been buried in his breast on ly for his rocking back, struck the wall beside

KILLED BY FLIRTING.

The Terrible Death of a Colored Brake ALBANY, Ga., February 5 .- [Special.]-

Killed by flirting. That was the sad fate of Alex Ward, colred, this week.

Ward, who was a train-hand on the Brunswick and Western railroad, was on top of the freight train as it left Sumner. Just as it pulled out from the depot, he spled two colored damsels tripping along by the side of th road. He turned to address them from his elevated perch, and commenced backing as he conversed in a low tone. He was so mu grossed by the bright eyes of his dusky charmers that he forgot to realize his dangerous position. He continued backing and talking until, to the horror of the girls, they saw him step back to the end of the car, Another movement, and, with a despairing cry, they saw him fall between the two moving boxcars. THE SUNDAY LAW discrimination in Favor of Hotels as Again Other Dealers—Criminal Cases Against Sunday Law Breakers.

DREATES MUCH AGITATION IN

SAVANNAH, Ga., February 5 .- [Special.]-There is a new phase of the Sunday closing question that is attracting much attention. It is claimed that it is the duty of the mayor, then a saloon keeper is before him, and evidence sufficient to convict is presented, to turn him over to the superior court for a violation of the state laws, just the same as he turns over a person guilty of carrying concealed weapons, or of a theft or other offense that makes him amenable under the statutes. It is understood that this question will be sprung on the mayor next Tuesday in case there are any saloon keepers before him. One of the first acts of the new council has raised a storm of disapprobation. It is a discrimnation in favor of hotel men as cigar sellers. At the meeting last night the council amended the Sunday closing law so as to permit the hotel men to sell cigars to their guests. Today the cigar store proprietors, the grocery men who sells cigars, and the drug store men likewise, were disgruntled, and complaining of the action. They claim that it is in violation of their right under the state constitution, which forbids such special legislation favoring members of a class. Some

into the courts and it probable that they will hold a meeting to est against this action of the council. It is also held that the ordinance is now practically an attempt to nullify the state statute, which forbids ordinary business on the Sabbath. On the same grounds it is held that every barber who keeps his shop open, and pursues his usual business can be indicted and punished with a heavy fine and imprisonment, and yet the council last night decided that barbers can keep open until noon on that day.

Some of the liquor men think that if they cannot sell on Sunday, the clubs and hotel ought not to be allowed men they have determined that to, and they have determined that the soda water fountain shall also cease to Out of all this a lovely time may be ex-

A little while ago a large winter party was being entertained in Leicestershire by Mrs. Arthur Wilson, the wife of the member of the firm of Wilson & Sons, the large ship owners of Heill. Among the guests were the prince of Wales and a large number of distinguished results.

DETECTED BY THE PRINCE.

There being no private theatricals or other side shows which are usually put forward to amuse his royal highness, the gentlemen retired to the smoking room, where a spirited game of baccarat was soon started. In due course it came to the prince's turn to keep the bank. He then noticed that whenever Sir Gordon-Cumming, who was opposite hin, won, he won heavily, but whenever he lost, lost lightly. He suspected some queer play, watched accordingly, and, as alleged, detected the peculiar proceeding.

The baronet held in his hands a number of pieces of gold, which he added surreptitiously to the stakes in front of him whenever he won, DETECTED BY THE PRINCE.

to the stakes in front of him whenever he won. but whenever he lost he removed in the same manner some money from the stakes on the table. Suddenly he was caught in the act, and enounced, and a friendly game was turned nto a row. Sir Gordon protested his innocence, but his accusers were equally firm in denouncing him. The prince eventually in-tervened and finally persuaded Sir Gordon to consent to arbitration and abide by the deciconsent to arbitration and abide by the decision of two gentlemen who were present, and whom he, the prince, would himself name.

This was consented to, and the result wa the arbitrators decided that any further reference to the matter be dropped and never al

there sign an agreement never to play baccarat again.

This was agreed to, and a document was drawn up which Sir Gordon, in the presence of the prince and the other gentlemen, then Unfortunately, there was staying in the house a lady who was most unfriendly towards him and whose husband was present at the row. He told his wife the circumstances in confidence and she spread the story. Now Sir Gordon, who still stoutly denies his guilt and is determined to clear his character, says that although he signed the paper not to play again, he did so only because he had previously given his word to the prince to abide by the decision of the arbitrators. He has placed the matter in the hands of his solicitors and has commenced proceedings for libel against the lady and her husband who are responsible for the spreading of the story, but their names have been up to now withheld from publication.

He has also served a subpena on the prince of Wales to appear as a witness in his behalf. If the case is ever brought into the light of court it will undoubtedly create a tremendous Gordon, who still stoutly denies his guilt and

FOUGHT A BEAR IN A MINE. A Hibernating Grizzly Awakened by Four

Men-A Fierce Contest in the Dark. Men—A Fierce Contest in the Dark.

Sonora, Cal., February 5.—The common belief that a hibernating bear is too stupid and sleepy to be dangerous is not shared by Foreman John Neil and three other men employed in the Santa Maria mine. Neil and his crew went into an abandoned crosscut from the tunnel to clean it out preparatory to pushing it ahead to strike a vein that had been cut on another level. Climbing over some fallen rock and timber, they awoke a big bear that had made a comfortable winter den in the drift.

The bear was full of fire and fight. He did not sit upon his haunches and growl at the minners after the fashion of story-book bears, but charged head first with such suddenness that no one was able to get out of the way or do any of the smart things that the regulation bear stories prescribe.

Neil's best recollection of the beginning of the rumpus is that at the first jump the bear knocked two or three of the party down, and that all but one of the candles went out. One biggest part of his scalp.

When Neil scrambled to his feet the bear When Neil scrambled to his feet the bear was between him and the mouth of the drift, and the two other miners were striking at the beast with their picks. Neil attacked bruin in the rear and tried to drive the point of a pick into his spine, but missed by an inch, and inflicted only a flesh wound. The bear wheeled instantly, roaring savagely and struck at Neil, but failed to reach him. In jumping back to avoid the blow Neil stepped upon the solitary sputtering candle and put out the light, and the rest of the battle was fought in the dark.

The fight became a mixture of growls and howls from the bear, thuds of the picks, and cries of pain and warning from men. When-ever a man thought the bear was within reach he struck as hard as he could with his pick. Sometimes the blow landed and sometimes if didn't. Whenever the bear heard a man move he rushed in that direction, and he charged about to such good effect that the men concluded that he could see to some degree in the darkness. He frequently struck them with his claws, but the assaults upon him were so continuous that he never had time to pay exclusive attention to one adversary. The fight lasted about an hour, as nearly as the men could guess at the time, and was ended by a lucky blow of a pick upon the spine at the base of the bear's brain. The lively old bear was a grizzly and weighed 900 pounds.

Negro Desperado Defies the Sheriff and His Posse—A Fusilade in the Dark. The Desperado Escapes

ATHENS, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—
There was a high old time in the free state of Madison last night, just over the Clarke county line. Lewis Sims, a desperate negro, was the dis turbing element, and after a pretty general fight with Sheriff Brooks and his posse, got

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE. It seems that yesterday morning, he went to Jim Johnson's and told him he was going to leave his service and go to work for Mr. Bose Matthews. Mr. Johnson told him he could not go, as under his contract he was entitled to his services. This angered the negro, and he began to abuse Mr. Johnson. They got into a scuffle, and Mr. Johnson pulled his pistol out and fired at the negro, but missed him. He lost his hold on the pistol, however, and the negro seized it, and turning it on Mr.

Johnson compelled him to retire. The negro then went about cursing and swearing. THE MURDEROUS ENCOUNTER. Last night, about 8 o'clock, Sheriff Brooks and a posse of men went to the negro's house to arrest him. They halted in front of the house and commanded him to come out. The only answer the sheriff received was a volley from the double-barreled shotgun in the hands of the negro, and the shot tore through the sheriff's overcoat, narrowly missing his body. Sheriff Brooks returned the fire with a Smith & Wesson, and expected to see the negro fall, but he kept advancing, having drawn a pistol as he neared the posse. The heriff ordered his men to fire, and they all did so.

CRASHING THROUGH HIS SKULL The negro still remained unmoved, and raising his pistol fired at the crowd and sent a ball crashing through the skull of Mr. Richard Stevens. Sims then turned and ran up the road, entering the Matthews' residence. sherif went to the house and asked for him, but Matthews said he would see that he was given up the next morning. THE NEGRO ESCAPES.

The posse left, and returned this mo only to find that the bird had flown. It is quite certain that the negro was wounded, perhaps seriously. Mr. Stevens's wound is not a serious one. The sheriff is still in pursuit of Sims, who is a dangerous character. A FOUNDLING.

Last evening when Major Edwards entered his front gate, returning from his office at the bridge works, he heard a strange noise coming from somewhere near by, but just where he could not somewhere near by, but just where he could not tell.

Major Edwards entered his house, but soon came out to the front porch again. The crying still continued, and the major, at a loss to explain it, began an investigation. He searched all around the house, but finally gare up the search.

A short while afterward, Will Hardaway, a young negro man, came along. He heard the crying and stopped to investigate. Deposited close up in the corner of the fence he found the babe. It was carelessly wrapped in a piece of old quilt, and its head rested upon the hard cold ground. Hardaway rang Major Edwards's bell and called him out. The babe was by him taken into the house and given in charge of Major Edwards's servant, who with the assistance of other negro women gave the child the proper attention.

Major Edwards notified the police, and an officer was sent out to investigate.

Upon Chief Connolly's order the babe was given in charge of a negro woman, named Carrie Rogers, who will take charge of it until this morning, when it will be sent to the Home of the Friendless.

Eniron Constitutions: Very many people, ladies and gentlemen, return thanks to the aldermanic board for their action yesterday in not concurring in the proposition of the council to place the police station on the ground occupied by the old Benevolent home. These people have not argued against a new police station; that matter is left with "the authorities," but they did most vigorously object to placing it on the site proposed by the council. This objection was based upon several reasons:

1. As citizens of Atlanta, it seemed to them to be contrary to all city pride, to place the city police

Central railroad, yesterday morning. Boyce was conductor of the freight train that was telescoped by the night passenger train. He was not injured in the smash-up, but was mashed in coupling the locomotive to a box car several hours afterwards. An iron bar struck him, which severely bruised his left hip. Boyce did not think nor was he considered badly hurt, but he was taken to Waynesboro, eleven miles off, on the engine, to be given medical attention. He was taken to Mr. Hunter's house in Waynesboro, where Dr. McMaster, surgeon of the road, visited him several times. The doctor did not consider Boyce seriously hurt or internally injured. He seemed to improve yesterday, and the news of his death at 2 o'clock this morning was a sudden and sad shock to his family in Augusta. The remains were brought here this afternoon 1. As citizens of Atlanta, it seemed to them to be contrary to all city pride, to place the city police headquarters on the car line which leads from the executive mansion and from the leading hotels to the capitol of the state—a line along which all visitors, the governor, most of the members of the legislature, and distinguished strangers must necessarily pass in going directly to the capitol, whether on business or as mere lookers on in the city.

2. The ladies especially, the gentlemen also, of Washington, Crew, Capitol avenue and Jones Augusta, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—Dr. ohn Dixon was arrested here today on an old Washington, Crew, Capitol avenue and Jones streets, which contain a large number of those who rank among the best families of the city, must necessarily pass over that car line every time they ride into or out of the central part of the city. For these, especially the large number of ladies, to be compelled to pass the station with its Black Maria, its crowds on the sidewalk, its officers passing back and forth with all the "arrested" ones in charge, would have been to be compelled constantly to witness unseemly sights, to which such a large number of ladies residing in any part of the city should not be subjected.

3. Many persons, on the east side of the city, passing on Sabbath days and at nights to churches on the other side of the city, and especially to the churches near the capitol, would have had the same sights constantly presented to their view. Many ladies would have shrunk from the journey.

4. It would have ruined a half dozen residences on Washington street, near the capitol, in rear of which the station would have stood. A position like this is the last place at which to plant the "urgliest" work under the control of the city—the police station work.

The vigorous objections were not made by merely some people; they were made by the entire population of several of the best residence streets

General admission 75 cents including reserved seats. Members free, 8 o'clock sharp is the hour.

Company B .- There was an enthusiastic meeting of Company B. Confederate Veterans last evening at their armory, No. 38 Decatur street. About thirty members signed the list of those who will purchase uniforms so as to appear in grand style Memorial Day. There will be about forty-members who wish to appear in uniform, but one-third at least, of those are not able to bear the expense A committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions to the fund for that purpose, and the public will no doubt respond most liberally to the call of the old soliders, who wish to keep alive the sacred emories that they cherish.

ELBERTON, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—
Two small fires occurred in Elberton. One was the burning of a plank kiln near the depot of the Elberton railroad, belonging to Mr. William Smith, in which several thousand feet of lumber was destroyed. The other was in a small wooden building on McIntosh street, in which Mr. Joe Hirsch, of Atlanta, had a lot of sample clothing, etc., in trunks. Mr. Hirsch had placed a small oil stove in the room for the comfort of his customers while examining his goods. During his temporary absence the stove exploded, setting the oil afire, which spread over the floor. Fortunately the fire was instantly discovered and put out before any serious damage was done. The Ladies' Memorial.—The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Memorial Association, which was postponed from Tuesday, was held yesterday evening. Several designs for a memorial shaft to be placed in Oakland cemetery to the memory of the dead soldiers have been considered, and another was looked over yesterday, but no choice was made. Plans were also discussed for the celebration of Memorial Day and for work for the celebration of Memorial Day and for work at the cemetery, but no action was taken. The questions will again come up before the next monthly meeting, which will be held on the first Tuesday in March.

A SUICIDAL SHOT IN WHICH TWO MEN HAVE REACHED

And Where a Third Attempts Self-Destruc tion Because One of His Sons Had Run Away.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., February 5 .- [Spe cial.]—Yesterday afternoon, near sundown, John F. M. Cain, an honored and highly respected citizen of Cain's district, this county, was found by two of his daughters lying pros-trate in a piece of woods, 700 yards from his residence, alone and in the arms of death. He was under the influence of four phials of laudanum, which he took in rapid succession. FOUND IN THE WOODS.

His actions at home in the afternoon were unusual and strange, which attracted the at-tention of the family, but no one dreamed of his intention to suicide. After having been gone for some time, and leaving no information as to where he was going, they began a search and tracked him to the woods, where he was found. The near neighbors and a physician came in soon, and by incessant work he was restored to consciousness and carried home, where he remains in a critical condition

THE REASON GIVEN. He gave no cause except that one of his ons had run away last week, and had acted otherwise contrary to his advice, which worried him so much that he decided to die, and deliberately took the laudanum for that urpose. His neighbors, who have been nurs ng him, think that he will repeat the effort to kill himself. He stands well in his community, and is a member of the Hog Mountain lodge of Odd Fellows.

THE HOME OF THE FRIENDLESS, It Is in a Good Condition-M New Plan for

Gtteing Subscriptions. The regular monthly meeting of the Home for the Friendless was held in the Young Men's library rooms yesterday morning. Reports of committees showed the society to be in a most prosperous condition.

There are at present about seventy-five children in the home and it has been found necessary to engage another teacher. The boys and girls will engage another teacher. The boys and girls will hereafter be taught separately.

This is a benevolent organization and, as every-body knows, is dependent on the public for its support. Heretofore no settled plan of soliciting subscriptions has been followed, and many who have the good of the home at heart have been in ignorance as to where or with whom to leave the amounts they wished to give. The ladies of the society will, after this, individually solicit subscriptions, each one presenting the following printed form, which subscribers will be asked to sign:

sign:

"We, the undersigned, hereby subscribe toward the payment of the running expenses of the 'Home for the iFriendless' for the year 1891, the sums set opposite our respective names, and to sums set opposite our respective names, and to pay to the treasurer of said home, said amounts, in quarterly installments on the 1st day of April, July and October, 1891, and January 1, 1892, one-fourth of said subscription in each payment." The treasurer, Mrs. E. P. McBurney, will then collect the subscriptions in person.

Sunday Morning. Some time Sunday morning next a large party of tourists will reach Atlanta over the Richmond eyes. Such glasses are the and Danville road.

They will remain in the city only a short while, however, leaving over the West Point road, on their way to New Orleans, and on to San Francisco, Cal. This is an excursion under the management of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's personally-conducted tourist department. The train will be a fac simile of the famous "Pennsylvania Limited," the excursion being lanned and executed on a most magnificent

In Regard to Howling. "Another howl," says The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, "will now go up from democratic and mugwump editors. The house committee that has been investigating Pension Commissioner Raum has drawn up a report completely exonerating him. The opposition has been pecking at poor Raum for some time. A finding which makes him innocent will give great disappointment."

Why should a howl go up from democratic or mugwump editors over the result of the Raum investigation? Does the Cincinnati paper suppose that editors are going to waste breath in howling over a result that has been predicted from the first? We have seen too many investigations of republicans by republicans not to be prepared for the in evitable barrel of whitewash.

We suppose that no democratic editor in the land expected any other result from the Raum investigation than that to which our Cincinnati contemporary has called attention. Republican whitewash is inexhaust-Ible, and the only surprising thing about it is the fact that a newspaper which is always talking about democratic dishonesty should be disposed to brag of the republican tendency to apply a coat of kalsomine to repub

The Commercial Gazette should not forget that it was mainly responsible for the exposure of the Wood-Foraker forgery and conspiracy, and it should make an effort to stand up to the dignity with which Mr. Halstead invested it. Our contemporary should also bear in mind that Raum is com paratively small fry.

There is Quay, who has never been investigated. By his silence he has practically pleaded guilty to some of the most damaging charges ever brought against a public man. What notice has the republican party taken of these charges? It has accepted them as facts to be proud of, and it has exalted Quay by giving into his hands the government of the party.

We should think that the exaltation of fraud and corruption would be calculated to make the honest republican editors howl.

Editor Bennett's Way.

A few days ago the discovery was made that a poor family of southerners was sick and destitute in New York.

The unfortunates were helpless and hope less until a brief article in The Herald called attention to their condition, and suggested that they deserved assistance. In two days small contributions to the amount of $277.50 were left at The Herald office, and other donations were sent directly to the family.

The two Bennetts-father and son-hav always been doing just such things. It is a part of the policy of the paper. The Herald never considered itself too great a newspaper to concern itself with the affairs of even the poorest and humblest.

Whether Bennett is at home or across the water, his paper follows the line marked out. Hundreds of times it has stepped aside from the discussion of great questions to relieve the unfortunate, or to make their wants known to the charitable. This is aside from Editor Bennett's personal gifts. He gives like a prince. Once when there was a fam ine in Ireland he gave the sufferers $100,000, four times as much as England's queen do nated.

Not only the poor southerners aided, the other day, will be grateful to The Herald. but southerners everywhere will have a warm place in their hearts for the great newspaper whose good deeds are so timely and so gracefully done.

The Rich Man's Party.

Since the failure of the desperate effort of the republican party to perpetuate its power through the medium of returning boards fringed with bayonets, people are naturally wondering what will be the character of its future policy.

If the signs of the times mean anything, the republicans will be defeated in the next national election, and it is no rash prediction to say that they will be on the losing side for a long time to come. But, although the party is essentially a war party, it is safe to say that it will not disband and disappear. This organization has gradually become the aggressive representative of the political, economic and social theories advocated by Alexander Hamilton. In a word, the central idea of republicanism is that this is a rich man's government, in which the poor should have no rights and no voice. With the rapid growth of great fortunes in this country a few privileged classes, held together by the cohesive greed of capital, have mbined and plotted to turn the republic into a plutocracy. In their eyes the masses are simply so much material for the tax and tariff mills to grind into powder.

The champions of these ideas will die hard. They have seen their policy of sectionalism meet with such a crushing and final defeat that they will not attempt to revive it. Hereafter they will fight on economic lines. The democrats who see no danger in the new republican plan of campaign are short-sighted. The Blaines of the rich man's party will hold out dazzling schemes, ranging from reciprocity to internal development, and embracing territorial expansion They will claim that they are going to favor nern development, and abolish poverty throughout the land. They will shout themselves hoarse over the wrongs of the masses, but they will never lose sight of high protection and the interests of the monopolists and plutocrats. Failing to reduce the people to serfdom by pinning them down with onets, they will attempt to make them still more helpless by maintaining the present unjust financial system, under which the rich grow richer and the poor grow poorer. Against such conspirators and such a programme the only effective fight that the people can make must be in and through the democratic party. When the old theory of Hamilton is to be wrestled with again, nothing less than the fierce democracy of Jefferon will be equal to the emergency.

Everything is rounding into admirable shape for the coming struggle. The various organizations representing the interests of the farmers and the toilers of the land will naturally array their compact legions in the solid phalanx of democracy, because from the very first down to this pregnant hour democracy has been the party of the people. Only under its banner can the masses suc cessfully combat the classes, and only through the steadfast maintenance of its principles can the government of the people for the people and by the people be rescued and upheld. And so the whirligig of time brings back the old issues-oppressed labor, the honest poor, the masses must again rally around he standard of Jefferson to try conclusions with the followers of Hamilton. If the freemen of America are true to themselves, history will repeat itself, and the republic will be redeemed.

Nature Versus Business.

The recent correspondence between the otton exchanges of Liverpool and New York was intended to be strictly business, but it has a humorous side to it.

The Liverpool exchange complained that this season's cotton crop received in Liverpool contained excessive moisture, and arbitrations had resulted in heavy allowances to buyers. In many instances contracts had been canceled. It was suggested that the American cotton exchanges should frame rules that would provide for this contingency, so that all the losses on moist coton would not fall on English buyers.

After due deliberation a committee of the New York exchange made a long reply to their British correspondents. The point was made that a spell of wet weather during the picking season was responsible for the moist cotton, and the committee very sensibly remarked that neither the cotton exchanges of America nor the growers of cotton could frame any rules that would prevent rain from wetting cotton before it was picked. The Liverpool correspondents were reminded that their suggestion was similar to one made by them years ago, when they complained of the presence of sand in cotton, after an unusually dry and windy season. The New Yorkers felt bound to say that the world in general is obliged to take things as it finds them. If the cotton crop is poor, wet or sandy, that is the article that must be traded for at the time.

Then taking a more serious tone, the com tittee said:

As a proof that an allowance has once been mad in the purchase price may be cited the fact that, whereas in a normal season the difference in val-ue between Texas and uplands in Liverpool is only 1-16 to $\frac{1}{8}$ of a penny, this season on account of the condition of upland cotton its relative value is less than Texas by 5-16 of a penny; showing that other growths, by reason of their defective condition, are already suffering an extra depreciatio amounting to 3-16 to 1/4 of a penny as compared to escaped wet weather during the picking season.

The English spinner has no more right to expect the seller of cotton to guarantee him against the drying process beginning with the picker house than he has to expect him to guarantee the spin-ning quality of the cotton in its subsequent pro-cesses, particularly when he has bought the damp cotton at a damp price. As for abnormal loss be-tween American and Liverpool gross weights, this committee know of no better way of guarding against the feature of complaint than by the English importer confining his dealings to responsible and reputable merchants on this side, who are able to pay for mistakes if they occur. This is a just view of the matter. The Englishmen cannot expect nature to be regulated by a set of business rules. They must take things as they are-profit by the sunshine, and suffer by the storms, like other people. Their appeal to the New York exchange was simply a request to be exempted dential causes. This is asking too much. Business is a big thing, but nature will have her way.

The Woos of Authors

The Chicago Mail alludes to the rumor that a number of charitable women are engaged in collecting funds for a home for decayed and impoverished authors-the home to be situated in Brooklyn-and then goes on to make this comment, which is either flippant or melancholy according to the standpoint of the reader: Some charitable women are busily engaged in collecting funds for a home for decayed and im-poverished authors, to be situated in Brooklyn No doubt this is a worthy and much-needed charity. There are few more melancholy specta cles than a poet who has nothing to stand be-tween him and poverty except a badly battered poetic license. And the feminine novelists, too hose aspiring maidens who think to scale Parnassus by putting a portrait of themselves on the itle-page and knocking the enacting clause out of the seventh commandment in the third chap ter! Surely there should be some retreat for thes damsels other than commonplace matrimony or an uncongenial nunnery. But, after all, the cynic may aver that the state in its infinite wisdom has provided certain commodious institutions to which almost any American author can gain adion, and in which he will be out of the hurly.

The mere fact that he has embarked upon so hazardous an experiment as trying to carve his living out of the convolutions of his brain affords sufficient basis for a physician's certificate of insanity.

There is a home for decayed actors, though it is supported by an endowment left by a member of the profession, and there is no reason why there should not be a home for decayed authors, provided the authors themselves furnish the funds.

It is curious to note, however, the curious basis on which authorship rests, and in which it permits itself to rest. In all other methods of earning a livelihood business relations are recognized and a certain business sense is recarded as necessary. There is a certain reticence, too, in every other trade or profession. But there is nothing like business in authorship. Everything goes slipshod and at haphazard. And it is thought necessary that the public should know all about it. This information sometimes takes very intimate shape, and personal matters are printed that would arouse the indignation of a business man.

Mr. Edmund Gosse has recently uttered protest which, it is to be hoped, will have a good effect. He calls attention to the fact that no other professional men are anxious to advertise either their success or their poverty. The lawyers and doctors do not run to the newspapers and give them the figures of their income, nor do the unsuccessful members of any other profession so advertise their woes.

In the case of authors it is what may be termed the "woe business" that is most frequently brought to the attention of the public. If, through inordinate vanity or for any other reason, the plainest and simplest rules of business are ignored in making s contract with a publisher, the public must know all about it, and it is expected to do onsiderable weeping.

We submit that all this is very tiresome Let people who are authors, or who expec to be authors, do as other people do, and place the whole matter on a business foot-ing. Those who are not successful should try something else, and those who are successful should emulate the admirable reti cence that prevails in other professions. Perhaps what we have said bears no definite relation to the remarks of The Chicago Mail, but it is worth thinking about, nevertheless.

NO STATION HOUSE

WILL BY BUILT ON WAVERLY PLACE.

The Board of Aldermen Declines to Concur in the Council's Action-Chief Joyner's Salary.

The new police station will not be located on Waverly place.

So the board of aldermen decided yesterday. When Mayor Pro Tem. Middlebrooks called the board to order in the mayor's office, Mr. Hutchison, Mr. Woodward, Mr. Reinhardt, Mr. Rice and Mr. Shropshire answered to the roll call.

In attendance, too, was Captain English, chairman of the board of police commission. So were Judge W. L. Calhoun, Dr. Con nally, Judge W. R. Hammond, Mr. G. B. Adair, Mr. Green Dodd, Mr. W. P. Pattillo Captain W. P. Ellis, Rev. Dr. McDonald, Rev. Dr. G. B. Strickler and Dr. Armstrong, all second ward residents.

They were present to protest against the tation house being placed on Waverly place. Clerk Woodward presented the majority report of the committee adopted by the council authorizing the purchase of the lot for a police tation. Instantly Mr. Reinhardt was upon his eet, saying:

"I move to non-concur in that report." Then Mr. Reinhardt spoke at length against he change. He asserted that it was foolish to think of selling the present police station, and said that the lot on Waverly place was not near large enough.

Mr. Hutchison followed Mr. Reinhardt, and opposed the purchase on the ground that the ot on Waverly Place is too small for the future needs of a station house, and rather than go there, the city would do better to build on the lot back of the present station house which is 50x76 feet, and in this manner meet the present need for more room. Such building could, at any time, be readily sold for warehouse pursoses whenever a sale was deirable. He did not think a change of investment from Pryor street to Waverly Place a good one.

Mr. Shropshire, a second ward representative, was against the report and advocated Mr. Reinhardt's motion. Mr. Rice occupied the same attitude to the

Mr. Woodward alone favored the plan to ourchase the Benevolent Home property, and after a strong appeal to the board suggested that Captain English be heard from.

Captain English took the floor and, after clearly demonstrating the necessity for a new station house, recited the great trouble committee had been to special in finding a location. He asserted that every locality had an opposition to it, and said that it was useless for the committo go further in searching for Captain English felt assured that no location could be found with fewer objections than the one under consider

"I don't believe," said he, "that one of the gentlemen who are here have come because of the good of the city, but on account of persona interest. There is nothing objectionable that I can see in the station house."

As Captain English concluded Judge Cal-

"In reply to Captain English's remarks touching our presence, I desire to say we have no objections to the police station being located There was a general smile, in which Captain

English took part.

Mr. Reinhardt's motion to non-concur was adopted, the vote being:

Mr. Hutt addressed the board, alguing for the award.

"I know," said he, "the time when the award for this condemnation would not have been more than $2,500, maybe as little as $1,500. Soon after the building was burned the question was up, and $2,500 would have paid the bill then."

Mr. Hurt went on to show how the property near by was to be improved and the great benefit the city would derive.

Mr. Hutchison favored the award.

The Cause of Revolutions.

All our political disasters grow logically out of attempts in the past to do without justice, as the sinking of some part of our houses comes of defect in the foundation. One thing is plain: A certain personal virtue is essential to freedom, and it begins to be doubtful whether our corruption in this country has not gone a little over the mark of safety, so that when canvassed we shall be found made up of a majority of reckless self-seekers.

The divine knowledge has ebbed out of us and we do not know enough to be free.

> KNOXVILLE, Tenn., February 5 .- [Special] The Gould-Inman party arrived here at 3 clock this evening, and with it three mer o control the lines of railroad from Savanah, Ga., to Portland, Ore.

They are Mr. John H. Inman, president of he West Point Terminal; Mr. Jay Gould, of the Missonri Pacific, and Mr. Sidney Dillon, sident of the Union Pacific. With them came General Samuel Thomas

Afterwards the drive was conued to the principal points of interest about the city, and the party returned to the cars sbout dark. Tonight they are attending a reception at the residence of Colonel McGhee.

Tonight I secured an interview with Mr. ild, and found him disposed to talk freely almost any subject which was brought up. Though much fatigued, he gave attention to all the questions asked, and replied deliberely. He is a man of small stature, and there is nothing extraordinary about his appearance.

During the interview he leaned back in an arm chair, resting his head on his band, occasionally sitting erect when the subject seemed to interest him. NOT HIS FIRST VISIT. "This is not my first visit to this section, he said, in reply to a question. "I have been to Atlanta once. I have been to Savannah and Charleston in my yacht. The southern waters I find very good for yachting, except in one or two places like Fernandina, where oveable bars make navigation difficut.

"The south is now developing rapidly, and I hink will continue to do so. There is some stern business coming this way. The states nd the Mississippi river are very fertile raise agricultural products cheaper than on can here; cheaper probably, than any part of the union. These products which you have to buy, can more economically be brought to you direct, and you may in turn sell them manufactured products to go back the same way. There is a good deal of grain coming south now. Kansas City may be fairly taken as the place from which to reckon comparative distances to the coast. My impression is that from that point to the coast, by way of the Missouri Pacific and the Terminal system, and thence by water to New York, counting the water distance one-half, said to the coast, by the counting the water distance one-half, said to the coast. as it is usually prorated, the whole distance from the west is about the same as by the northern roads. The Union Pacific could deliver freight to us, or we to them, at Omaha or Kansas City and we could turn it over to the Central system at Arkansas City or Mem-

THE OWNERSHIP OF RAILEOADS "Do you think the railroads of the country will eventually be under one management?" "No, it is too big an undertaking. Owners of some roads think they are worth more than others. Then the stock of dividend-paying roads is scattered. People have different ideas, and it is hard to get them together."

"What do you think of railroad regulation?"
"In some states where the commissions ve worked in unison with the roads, they have done great good to the roads and the state. In other cases it has been the re-tuning In Iowa, for instance, where a destructive construction ite. In other cases it has been the reverse policy was adopted, railway construction

"Which is the best railway commission?" "The Massachusetts commission."
"Are rates lower there?"

"No, they are higher. The western rates are the lowest in the world. The Central Pacific has expensive fuel, and on that road rates are higher."
"What do you think of government control of telegraphs?"

"It always costs more to do work for the ment than for private parties. Polital parties charge, and those who are ice, knowing that it is of uncertain tenite, do the best they can for themselves. dere is always a good deal of red tape. Work by everyment telegraphs costs more than that by private companies. The English ser-vice is the best government system. For the

"I hardly think so. The cable companies ne not much more than earning interest on the investment. It requires about $5,000,000 to lay a double cable line between New York and Liverpool."

now increasing it at the rate of about $5,000,000 a month by the operation of the silver bill.

We are beginning to feel it, and in the course of a few months will feel it much more. The coinage amounts to $50,000,000 or $60,00,0000 of silver, and about $30,000,000 of gold. What created the stringency here was the fact that people got scared and didn't know how far co might go towards free coinage; and they hoarded gold in safe deposit vaults, savings institutions; and trust companies began to lay by a supply of gold very much larger than in ordinary times. I should not wonder if a $100,000,000 were laid away, and that made matters excessively close. Now that confidence is restored, that money has come out, and you will notice that money in New York is a drug. It is offered at 2 or 3 per cent, any quantity of commercial business, 90 per cent of it is done in checks and bills of exchange. They use specie except to settle balances. the best. I consider the government good anyhow, and with the guaranty of the government, plus collateral to the same amount, you have the best currency. As to gold and silver, I think the coinage should be kept in the proper ratio between the metals. Enough of ach should be coined to keep them on a par. Not enough silver should be coined to drive out gold.' THE TARIFF.

"What do you think of the tariff question?" "I believe in protection, but not extreme protection. I think we should give protection o our own manufacturers, to balance the difference in the cost of material and the cost of labor. In other words, to develop our own manufactures, because, when we do that, we develop a home market for agricultural products. No matter how much grain you raise, if there is no market for it, we are no better off The large industries growing upon this side of the water make great home markets, but we should not make our tariff so high that we should force great nations like England to retaliate, because they are our greatest custom ers of agricultural products. England is a great customer for our corn, cotton, petroleum, cattle ard all kinds of packing house products. We inate. She must pay for our agricultural products largely in her manufactures. A nation will soon become bankrupt if it buys more than it sells. If a man spends more money than his income, he will soon have to call in the sheriff, and what is true of men is true of nations.

'What do you think of the force bill?" "I believe in home rule. Local matters should be left to the people to regulate at at home. In New York we are great sticklers for home rule; in the city, I mean. We go on the theory that local people with local sentiments can tell what is best for their prosperity, better than people at a distance. I am sorry to see any legislation in the north or south that is extreme. The war is over, and I think it should be forgotten, and reshould look ahead to the future. We want to develop our country and our age and make it the grandest of all the countries and all the ages that ever existed. We should work to that end and, not upon what has happened in

"What do you think of immigration?" "I would like to see immigration confined to respectable people, to people who have some means to support and care for themselves those who would have something at stake in the country which they adopt as their home. If they have some property invested, it is always a guaranty that they will behave them-selves, and make good citizens. I think im-migration should be restricted as to that. "Criminals and bad characters ought not to come here and be citizens immediately, with votes equal to those who are born in the country and have grown up here, whose whole associations and whole love is their country." "What do you think of Carnegie's 'Gospel of Wealth?" Mr. Gould did not seem to understand. I explained briefly that the the idea was for a rich man to give away most of his property before he leaves this vale of tears.

"Mr. Carnegie is a very generous man," observed Mr. Gould, "and he has done a great served Mr. Gould, "and he has done a great deal of good. I think that a man who uses his means to provide labor for a large number of people, that is, to support them by industry rather than support them without industry, is doing the highest kind of charity. I think Mr. Carnegie, with his vast steel works, employers ALLIANGEMEN MEET ploying twenty or thirty thousand men, so that they earn a support for their families, is the right kind of charity."

"What do you think of Port Royal?" "It is a fine harbor, but it would take great railroad interests to build it up." "Atlanta?"

"I have been there once. With its surroundings it must be, indeed, it is, a great distributing point. There is no lack of room for a great commercial center at Atlanta. All the southern sites seem to be growing rap-A TALK WITH MESSES, INMAN AND CALHOUN.

I had an interesting joint interview with Mr. Inman and Mr. Calhoun. "Mr. Inman, Mr. Gould and Mr. Dillon can take a train of cars at Savannah and carry them to Portland, Ore., without breaking bulk," said Mr. Calhoun. "There is a point which I would like you to bring out. The great states west of the Mississippi are agri-cultural states, with such products to sell and nanufactured goods to buy. Heretofore, there has been no trans-Mississippi system to bring western produce directly east. It has been drawn north, as I may say, by way of the perimeter; now we propose to bring it by way of the diameter. Now, to make business profitable, the cars that come cast loaded must go back loaded. That will pills of exchange. they prefer it. THE DEPOT AT ATLANTA. In reply to a question about depots, Mr. In-"We are going to build some at Atlanta, Chattanooga and Birmingham. At Atlanta we have the site and, with that secured, it takes a comparatively small amount of money to build a depot."

"In a place like Atlanta you can build a good nion depot for $200,000." "A big some to ordinary mortals," I remarked breathlessly.

"Yes, but not to five or six railroads," said Mr. Calhoun. "Isn't there some way to do away with Whitehall street crossing? No, it ought not to be done away with," said Mr. Calhoun.

"But it's a deathtrap. It ought to be bridged or something." "It ought to be tunneled," replied Mr. Cal

The party leaves tomorrow morning at o'clock for Chattanooga, then to be lunched at the Lookout Inn, driven over the city, and dined at the Cobweb Club. They leave tomorrow night as second section of No. 11 East Tennessee road, and arrive in Atlanta about 6 o'clock Saturday morning. W. G. COOPEE.

PROMINENT ALLIANCEMEN MEET

Meet to Discuss Alliance Affairs-A New Paper Probable.

Prominent alliancemen from different parts of Georgia held a secret conclave at the executive mansion last night. Matters of great interest to the order were iscussed and some lively sensations are romised for the near future. The callifor the meeting came from Secretary Burks, of the state alliance. The charac

Burks, of the state alliance. The character of that call is fully set forth in the following which came to The Constitution from Macon yesterday:

Macon, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—A well-known allianceman, who does not live 100 miles from Macon, received a letter from Mr. R. L. Burks, the secretary of the state alliance, inviting him to be present at a meeting at the governor's mansion in Atlanta, Thursday evening, the 5th instant, at 7:30 o'clock, to consider a "matter of importance to the alliance," at which meeting, it was stated in said letter, a number of prominent alliancemen from all parts of the state would be presented. nen from all parts of the state would be pres ent. The person to whom the letter was writ-ten was urged to keep the matter a strict secret, as it was "important to have nothing said about the meeting."

It was impossible for the aforesaid prominent allianceman to attend the meeting, but he was naturally anxious to know what was going on, and, to get at the bottom of the deep secret, made inquiries which let out the con-tents of the invitation for him to be present. He is still anxious to know of the meeting. In obedience to the secretary's instructions, In obedience to the secretary's instructions, the greatest secrecy has been maintained. During the day a number of men recognized as leaders of the order dropped quietly down in Atlanta, but one and all made it a point to avoid newspaper men and to talk of nothing but crops.

By 7:30 o'clock they began dropping in to call on his excellency, the governor.

One of the subjects considered was The Southern Alliance Farmer.

It developed that there is no little dissatisfaction in the order with the official organ. A number of those present expressed themselves freely on this and urged the establishment of a paper which would, as they put it, "reflect the best alliance sentiment. "They argued that that paper is not all that could be desired, some going so far as to characterize it President Livingston's private haracterize it President Livingston's private

And in this connection there developed decided opposition to some of the officers of the state alliance. While nothing was done, an investigation was hinted at, and a committee was appointed to shape a policy for those gentlemen in sympathy with this meeting. WEDDINGS IN ATLANTA

THE MARRIAGE OF MISS WILLING-

Brilliant Affair at the First Baptist Church—The Martin-Martin Wedding-Other News of Society.

Yesterday evening at 7:30 o'clock a wedding took place at the First Baptist church in which many Atlantians are interested. It united Miss Julia Kirk Willingham to Mr. P. A. O'Conner, The church was very handsomely decorated with palms and tropical plants, and the ceremon was very impressively performed by Dr. Morrison assisted by Dr. Hawthorne.

The bridal party, which entered to the sweet strains of the wedding march, was as follows:

Ushers—Mr. William Reed, Mr. William King, Mr. Tom Northen and Dr. McRae.

Attendants—Miss O'Connor and Mr. Stiff; Miss

Lawton, of Macon, and Mr. Sam Burbank; Miss Smith, of Greenville, and Mr. Charlie Northen; Miss Nunan, of Clarkwille, and Mr. Will Hub-bard; Miss Farke and Mr. Dawson, and Miss Fry. of Chattanooga, and Mr. Joe Willingham.
Miss Fet Willingham acted as maid of honor, and entered alone.
Miss Willingham, the bride, entered on the arm of her father. The groom entered on the arm of his best man, Mr. Ellis. The attendants joined

The bride was dressed in a handsome brocaded white satin, en train and trimmed with exquisite lace. It was made very stylishly with pointed basque, half sleeves and Medici collar. Her long well was caught with lilies of the valley and fastened with pearl pins. She carried in her hand a large bouquet of liles of the valley and maiden hair fern and made a lovely and graceful picture.

The bridesmaids were dressed alternately in white and gold, China silk, made princesse, and white and gold, china six, made princeses, and trimmed with gold and silver braid. They carried bouquets of yellow roses, tied with yellow ribbon. After the ceremony the bridal party were carried to the pleasant home of Mrs. McD. Wilson, the sister of the groom, where a delightful recep-tion was tendered them. The house was decorated most artistically with vines and foliage plants, and many bowls of roses, lilies of the valley and camelias. Delicious refreshments were served, and the dining room decorations were beautiful

Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will be the recipients of many hearty congratulations. They left at midnight for New Orleans where they will remain until after mardi gras. From there they will visit all the principal southern cities and Cuba. On their return to the city, they will be at home to their friends at No. 19 Highland avenue. Mrs. O'Connor is the daughter of Mr. E.

Willingham, a prominent Atlanta citizen. She is a very lovely and popular young lady with the gentle traits of character which combine to make a noble woman. Mr. O'Connor has also many friends, and is highly thought of for his business ability and many fine traits of character. The best wishes of the entire city follow this young couple. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor received many handsome presents.

Another wedding which occurred last evening united Miss Lillian Martin to Mr. Grant Martin, both of this city. The wedding occurred at the residence of the bride's father on West Peachtree, and was a very quiet affair, only the intimate friends and relatives being present. The cere-mony was performed by the Rev. Dr. McDonald. The bride wore a very handsome cloth suit, an carried in her hand a large bouquet of white bridoses and French ferns. THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange. NEW YORK, February 5.—Trading in the stock market was dull again today, but the market showed a continuation of the late strength, especially in the forenoon, and with a slight set-back caused by weakness in a few stocks, there was a strong undertone dis-played throughout the session. Among those which showed the most strength at times, may be mentioned showed the most strength at times, may be mentioned Missouri Paclific, Wheeling and Lake Eric, Union Pacific and Lake Shore, with special advances in many of the inactive shares. The room was inclined to be bullish in the early trading, one of the features being the buying of recognized leaders of the bear party, and their outspoken utterances in favor of a figs. London was a buyer to a limited extent, and Gould brokers, as well as the bear was hidding for stocks. This buyers was been were hidding for stocks. This buyers was the stock of the sto vell as the bears, were bidding for stocks. This buying was especially prominent in St. Paul, and together with several others of the leading shares it was run up with several others of the leading shares it was run up a large fraction, when the movement culminated and duliness again became the leading feature of the market, and outside of certain specialties prices drooped all along the line. Chicago gas was a prominent leader in this decline though it afterward recovered the greater portion of its loss. Northern Pacifics, however, were heavy all the way out, the opinion being that there has been a large line marketed on the strength of the greaterly market. Union Pacific, however, became eral market. Union Pacific, however, became trong in the afternoon, and the upward movement, thich lasted until 47 had been reached, was accompawhich lasted until 47 had been reached, was accompanied by a statement that the report for December would be better than generally expected. The grangers, even after the collapse, of the movement in St. Paul, were quite firm and on slight fluctuations generally scored small gains. Industrials were quiet to dull again, and while sugar stocks were strong their improvement was small, and lead, while more active than the rest failed to move outside of extremely narrow dend is equal to 10 per cent at the present price of the tock has had no influence to make its purchase seem rable. The general list showed little movement or feature after the first hour, but Pacific Mail reflected ent of holders over the prospects or ss of the subsidy bill by a decline of 2 per cent. slowness of the subsidy bill by a decline of 2 per cent, and it is tonight the one stock among the leaders which shows any material loss for the day. On the other hand Edison general electric, on the circulation of the rumor that the Vanderblits were going into the directory, opened up 7½ at 110. and after selling at 111 retired to 106, at the close. Great Northern also showed a marked advance, but lost a portion later in the day. The market finally closed dull and steady at insignificant changes for the day. Sales of listed

NEW YORK, February 6 .- our market opened but NEW YORK, February 8.—Our market opened buoy-ant on higher prices in London and a decided improve-ment in the feeling here. Reports from railroad cen-ters in the west, and intelligence of a probable de-crease in carnings as a result of the small crops speak very hopefully of the possibility of rates being main-tained, and the feeling among railroad managers seemed to be decidedly more hopeful. The grapes tocks seemed to be decidedly more hopeful. The grange stocks have shown the influence of this and were among the features of today. Among specialties there was a shar advance in Edison General Electric Company stock of the report that a block of this stock had been acou by the Vanderbilt family who would be represented the board. Transactions were somewhat smaller th

NEW YORK, February 5.—(Special.)—Our advices from Liverpool state the market is supported by a demand to cover saics made on the recent decline, but continue to repeat the poor accounts of the Manchester market we have noted from time to time. The absence of spinners is not only noticeable in the Liverpool market but in our own markets, where the reported sales are very small, although the advance in the arrival market abroad would seem to the resident induces. ments to shippers to buy for consignment abroad in the absence of demand from spinners. Receipts at the ports are not very heavy—21,000 bales, against 18,000 bales last week—and it is now admitted that the falling off in the demand from Europe will cause the receipts to fall below the earlier estimates of 170,000 bales for the week. It is now thought they will be between 169,000 and 165,000 bales, against 13,000 bales last year. At the known interior towns the receipts are 3,900 bales, against 1,900 bales last year, and it is estimated the interior movement tomorrow will show about 47,000 bales, against 36,000 bales last season. Stocks show little diminution, and the plantation movement is therefore likely to be heavy. Our market is very quiet, the absence of the spinning demand here and abroad causing a waiting market without any distinctive tendency.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas. By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas.

NEW YORK, February 5.—The market was influenced by the slight improvement advised from Liverpool this morning. In fact, the apathy which has been noted for the past week or so continues, while some little selling for European account has held what little disposition there was to help the market in check. Beyond this there is also the natural factor of liberal receipts against the improvement, and the outlook promises little change on this score. In fact, if anything, the tendency seems a downward one in the immediate future.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, February 5.—Wheat opened with a weak feeling, which subsequently disappeared but returned again, and the bears were in control during the last 15 minutes of the session. During that time the price of May dropped from around $1.00 to $9\frac{1}{2}c. The drop was occasioned by a report that it was a various neares

The corn market was strong on small receipts and scarcity of contract grain. A good demand for cash corn was also a stimulant to speculative buyers. The oats market was parely steady. The a small amount of business, and not much interes

The tone of the trading in the provision pit was firmer than of late. The figures of the week's packing in the CHICAGO, February 6.—The general trading in wheat today was light. The local feeling was rather dition of winter wheat and plenty of moisture in Kansas tended to produce a weak feeling. Late Ber-lin and Paris cables were reported stronger. The re-ported rains yesterday in California proved to be very light, scarcely more than a heavy dew. Quite a number of limited orders to buy at about 99 changed to buy at the market, causing an advance to about 100%, when the scalpers again became bearish, and a few outside orders came in to sell, closing the market a shad lower than yesterday with rather a weak appearance. Some of our best local speculators who were firm selicors in wheat, but who sold out their holdings last saturday and Monday, think they will be able to buy t back near 98 and are making an effort in that direcion. Wheat appears to have no special tendency, being a sort of scalping deal. The light receipts of cor ing a sort of scalping deal. The light receipts of corn brought some good buying orders from the southwest causing more than usual activity, but the amount of corn offered for sale above 54 cents demonstrated very clearly that purchases were being made only for a scalp, and those who are not satisfied with a small profit are liable to receive nothing.

There has been some good buying of provisions nearly all day. On the opening the offerings were quite large from disgusted holders having become tired out waiting for the receipts of hogs to materially decrease, but the offerings were soon absorbed, particularly by the packers covering their shorts, and partially he crease, but the offerings were soon absorbed, particularly by the packers covering their shorts, and partially by speculators who think that product cheap enough to begin making investments, some of whom, should the market decline further, will increase their holdings, having great confidence that some time within the near future prices will improve. Some of the heavy speculators are storing large quantities of ribs, and it would seem now that almost the entire production stock was passing into their hands. This would indicate that they believe that the large run of hogs is about over, and that the domestic and foreign demand for ribs will require the immense stocks now in sight.

Large Parties Who Have Engaged Passage Over the Atlanta and West Point.

A large number of Atlanta and Georgia people seems to be the popular route.

This road runs by way of Montgomery and Mobile, and is equipped in such style as to deserve the popularity it enjoys by the traveling public. Captain John Gee, the popular and efficient passenger agent of the West Point, has exerted himself to secure the comfort and pleasure of the parties that will be under his charge. Special sleepers with every service and luxury will be run. Accommodations for an unusually large number have been prepared and the outlook is that the West Point will carry more people out of Atlanta for New Orleans this year than have yet embarked for the mardi gras festivities in past seasons.

Yesterday Captain Gee was a busy man, arranging accommodations for the parties going over his route.

ing accommodations for the parties going over his route.

Among those whom he booked yesterday are: Mr. E. W. Marsh and daughter, Mr. C. S. Dwight, Miss M. Lawrence, Mr. W. H. Trezevant, Mr. E. C. Wizeman, Miss Mallette, Mr. Askew and wife, Colonel W. M. Edwards and party, Mr. W. H. Ketchum, Mr. A. L. Beck and wife, Mr. Marston, Mr. J. C. Rouse and party, Colonel H. T. Tuppen and party, Mr. W. E. Austin, Mr. W. T. Harper, Mr. H. W. J. Wilson, Mr. T. J. Hunter, Mr. J. P. Adams and party, Mr. H. C. Campbell, Mr. O. B. Johnson, Mr. Jacob Elsas, Mr. M. Fisher, Mr. W. L. Holt and others.

This party will be joined by a party of thirty-five or forty from Columbia, S. C. and Augusta. The Augusta party is to be in charge of Colonel W. A. Camp, who is familiarly known as the "Duke of Augusta."

Captain Gee has arranged to have parties leave on the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th. Those who go under his care may feel sure of being handsomely treated.

THE CHESS MATCH.

Iwo Interesting Games Played Yesterday, Each Player Winning One.

Yesterday morning, when the champions faced each other, both seemed eager for the fray. It was Mr. Orchard's time to open the game, and he again adopted his favorite—the "Evans gambit."

Professor Wurm tried an amended version of the Steinitz defense, and at the end of twelve moves his adversary appeared to have the preferable position. Both players exercised much care and consumed nearly all the time at the r

At a critical juncture, when there were two At a critical juncture, when there were two courses open to the attacking players—either to make a brilliant dash and try to carry the day by Napoleonic tactics, or to play quietly and aim to gain the small advantage of a pawn, Mr. Orchard's impetuosity got the better of his judgment, and he sacrificed his queen, expecting to get an irresistible attack against the adverse king, who was very much exposed to assault. The combination proved faulty, and, after a few moves, Mr. Orchard resigned.

The seventh game of the match was begun yesterday afternoon. Professor Wurm had the attack and he again tried the "Seotch gambit," sacrificing a pawn to get a fierce attack. Mr. Orchard's defensive manouvers were exact, and it was not long before he instituted a vehement counter attack.

was not long before he instituted a vehement counter attack.

He pushed his pawns forward in seemingly reckless fashion, and his adversary was powerless to stem their onward march. A very large crowd was intently watching this game. Finally Professor Wurm by an ingenious stroke recovered his lost pawn, but his opponent remained with a slightly better position than his. It seemed as if the game would be protracted, but it soon came to an end. Mr. Orchard brilliantly sacrificed a rook, which, however, his cautious antagonist declined to take. In refusing the gift Professor Wurm laid himself open to a checkmate in two moves. This proved the most exciting game of the match.

By mutual agreement hostilities are suspended till next Monday morning at 11 o'clock, when the eighth game will be begun.

The score now is: Orchard, 4 games; Wurm, 3 games.

Thomas W. Keene.

Mr. Thomas W. Keene, the distinguished tragedian, will commence a two-night engagement at the opera house this evening, opening in Bulwer's great historic play "Richelleu."

Mr. Keene's Richelieu is to some extent a revelation of dramatic work. It is strong in its studied effects, acute and telling in its interpretation. The play fairly teems with gems of thought, and these have led to its abuse by alleged elocutionists and would-be tragedians. The world long since named the Richelieu of Barrett and that of Booth great, and it is by their marvelous conceptions that it has been judged. But Mr. Keene's impersonation is particularly his own. In fact, he has poured into the conception of the character of Armand Richelieu a spirit of patriotism which dims every fault of cunning, trickery, deceit and unscrupulousness, and makes it as it was born in Bulwer's mind, the very embodiment of a love of country. Mr. Booth's Richelieu is the Richelieu of history eliminating the decrepitude. Mr. Keene's Richelieu deserves a place in dramatic history as perhaps the most scholarly and best interpreted conception on the stage of today. It is fiction, but it is the very grandeur of fiction, and that is what Bulwer intended it for. On Saturday, "Louis XI," and at Saturday matinee, "Merchant of Venice" will be presented. of dramatic work. It is strong in its studied

Musin is a Genius.

The second entertainment, says the Cleveland, Ohio, Plaindealer, at Music Hall, took place last Saturday evening and was listened to by a magnificent audience. Musin is more than an artist. He is a genius to whom the violin seems native. To hear him play, one could almost believe that he was inspired by the very genius of his wonderful instrument. Such sweetness of tone, such exquisite beauty of sound could not have been acquired by years of study. It must have been born in him, and it seems, to hear him play, as though he could not, for his life, help producing exquisite harmony. We know there is something about Musin's playing that is entirely captivating. He was received with rapturous applause and favored the audience by complying with several persistent encores. Musin is a Genius.

CAPTAIN BERKELEY TO HAVE CON-TROL OF THE MAIN LINE. ething About Superintendents Ryder and Hammond-Other Matters of General Interest to Railroad Men On the 10th instant Captain Edmund Berkeley, superintendent of the Atlanta and Char-lette division of the Richmond and Danville ailroad, takes charge as superintendent of the main line of the Richmond and Danville, with andquarters at Richmond, Va.

THE RAILROAD WORLD.

This is looked upon by the railroad men here as a promotion for Captain Berkeley, and all unite in pronouncing it a most worthy one.

CARTAIN EDMUND BERKELEY.

Captain Berkeley is a native of Virginia, and is about forty-five years of age. In 1869 he graduated at the Washingten-Lee university in civil and mining engineering. In 1870 he went with the Mobile and Alabama railroad as division engipeer in charge of surveys, location and coast work. Subsequently he was employed by the United States government in surveying the Chattahoochee river from Eufaula to Appalachicola. He afterwards went to Texas, where he was employed by the International and Great Northern and Texas and Pacific railroads, his principal work being the location of wild lands. Following that he accepted a osition with the Mobile and Ohio road as engineer of maintenance. During the last two ears of his connection with that road he built for it an extension from Columbus, Ky., to

In 1884 Captain Berkeley came to Atlanta s superintendent of the Atlanta and Charlotte division of the Air-Line system. During his seven years' occupancy of this position he has come in contact with all clas of men and they are unified in pronouncing him athorough gentleman. He is a man of unquestioned integrity and treats all alike with the utmost fairness in his business dealings. Captain Berkeley has one trait which many business men would look upon as a fault, and that is an extremely modest and retiring nature. But that doesn't hinder him from being a splendid railroad construction man, and the track of the division he is about to leave is pronounced one of the best in the country, considering the obdurate nature and regularity of the soil upon which it is laid. In his new position as superintendent of the main line and its branches he will have control of about 354 miles of road. Mr. C. P. Hammond, at present superin-tendent of the Georgia Pacific division, who mcceeds Captain Berkeley, with headquarters here, is also a man of considerable experience in mechanical and construction work. He is a graduate of Sewance college, Tenn., and served his apprenticeship as a machinist in the shops of the Mobile and Ohio road. He was for twelve years assistant to Captain Berkeley in locating and construction work, and then re as engineer of maintenance of way of the Richmond and Danville road. He has held his present position only a few months. Mr. W. B. Ryder, who goes to Birmingham to take charge of the Georgia Pacific, was formerly general superintendent of the Chesapeake and Ohio road. He subsequently took charge of the main line of the Richmond and Danville, and has held that position for several years, to the complete satisfaction of the company. He is a thoroughly practical man, and his education in railroad building has been such as to place him, in the estimation of his confreres, in the front rank as a trans-P. S. Gilmore, general northern agent of the East Tennessee, Virgingis and Georgia, at Chicago, has been made general passenger agent, with headquarters at Knoxville. He will have charge of the East Tennessee's advertising—a big job in taeif, aside from his other duties.—[Courier-Journal.]

Not just yet. Mr. Gilmore has been made general traveling passenger agent, and Colonel Wronn did it for him. Mr. Gilmore is a first-class man, but the East Tennessee cannot afford to lose the man who has done so much to spread its name and fame from Portland. Ore., to Portland, Me., and from Winnipeg to Key West. To those who are watching with interest the movements of the Virginia veterans, the announcement is made that they will arrive in the city Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. It is reported that on the 10th instant, the East Tennessee road will reduce rates to all points west about 6 per cent. The Macon and Birmingham railroad is now in operation to LaGrange, Ga., and will be rapidly pushed through to Birmingham as soon as the Savannah extension is completed. It will enter Chambers county near Standing Rock, in the northeastern part, and traverse the northern tier of sections, crossing the Tallapoosa river at the mouth of High Pinc creek. This road is anxiously awaited by the citizens along its proposed line, and will much enhance the value of lands in northern Chambers. It is announced that the line will be in full operation before the said of this year.

A writes in The Railway Age says that the simplest way to note the speed of a train is to count the rythmical "chuck-chuck" of the wheels as they pass over the rail joints. As all rails are now thirty feet long the rule is: "The number of joints passed over in twenty seconds is equal to the rate of speed in miles per hour." This rule will work on all roads but those having a perfect track where the wheels pass noiselessly over the joints, but as nearly all roads are not perfect, many of them far from it, the above rule is a good practical one. If you have any trouble in catching the sound sit by an open window or stand on the platform. This method also has the advantage that you need not take your eyes off the watch dial in order to catch the fleeting mile posts.

Colonel Mike Brown, president of the Sethoard Construction Company, which was organized last week for the purpose of building the Middle Georgia and Atlantic railroad, says his company is tranging its plans as rapidly as possible so as to get to work. He says he knows nothing gbout the sported combination of his road and the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery and Southbound.

Today there will be a meeting at Nashville of the general ireight agents and traffic managers of railroads which once comprised the Southern Fright Association. The meeting is for a discussion of rates and freight affairs generally. The shville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, Louisville and Nashville, East Tennessee, Virginia and Corgia and other prominent roads of the south be represented.

Mounted Patrolmen Jennings and Hamilton got on track of the burglars, and by a little skill-ful detective work, found a part of the goods and captured the thieves.

DO WE WANT IT?

THE PEOPLE AND RAILROADS NOW HAVE A CHANCE TO DECIDE.

In a Few Hours' Work, the Exposition Subription Committee Makes a Most Gratifying Showing.

The exposition committee on subscript ommenced its work yesterday, and a splendid showing has already been made. Do we want an exposition in 1891?

The merchants and citizens generally and railroads alone can determine the momentous question, and the present is the time to do it. From the citizens of Atlanta $9,000 and from the railroads $7,500 are asked.

That is the amount required to guarantee the success of the exposition, and if it is obained, the date of holding the exposition will be October 19th to November 7th inclusive. Subscriptions made up yesterday in only a few hours' time show a most gratifying result, onsidering the fact that but one street, and this one only partly, is canvassed. While a very few of the merchants seen s far seem to be not in favor of an annual exposition for reasons of their own, the greater par of the business men and the general public declare themselves most distinctly and enthusiastically in favor of it. The outlook is most brilliant. Parties who have heretofore hown very little or no interest in the exposi-

As far as the material profits of the exposition are concerned, the stockholders desire to say that the money which comes from the public certainly goes for the benefit of the whole community. Vast crowds will witness the great show and will doubtless spend their ney liberally.

All interests are benefited. The railroads profiting by increased carriage of travel and merchandise; every city business, great and small, reaping that advantage sure to result from the great temporary addition fo popu-

In the Spring.

Nature should be assisted, when the system is changing from the full habit of the winter months, to the lighter diet of the warm season. Swift's Specific (S. S. S.,) stimulates the sluggish blood and rid you of that feeling of heaviness and languor.

S. S. S., beautifies the skin and makes the complexion rosy and healthy.

S. S. S., gives elasticity to the step and buoyant spirits. S. S., makes the feeble and delicate strong and robust.

S. S., is a tonic to the whole body and increases vitality.

S. S., is a simple vegetable medicine.

If there is poison in the blood, it generally shows itself in the spring, and this is the season to help nature to drive it out and be cured. Nothing does this as well as S. S. S. It is harmless to the most delicate, yet so powerful as to cleanse the system of all impurities.
